A MESSAGE FROM PASTOR LIZ

Abide in me as I abide in you. Just as the branch cannot bear fruit by itself unless it abides in the vine, neither can you unless you abide in me. I am the vine, you are the branches. Those who abide in me and I in them bear much fruit, because apart from me you can do nothing.

John 15: 4-5

As I have reflected on the past year, it is so evident that in our mission and ministry, Christ abides in us and calls us to live in that promise that we don't ever really do anything apart from Jesus. The image of Jesus as the vine and we being among the many branches helps us to remember that everything we are a part of is given life by Christ working within us. In worship, in service to others, and in hospitality shown, we help share the love of Christ to all whom we encounter.

Some of the significant themes and fun events that we were blessed to be a part of in 2016 were:

Learning the new setting 6 liturgy from our ELW Worship Book. Thanks to all who helped us to learn it and for the persistence of the whole congregation as we continue to become familiar with the liturgy and sing it with more confidence.

Hosting the Good Earth Village Summer Staff Commissioning Service and providing them with lunch.

The birth of a new event that we have talked about for awhile—The Stock the Shelves Italian Dinner and Serenade. With homemade lasagna and lots of special music groups performing, we had a wonderful night (despite the rain) with community members and St. John's folks. All profits went to the Southland Area Food Shelf in Adams.

The annual Ham and Beef Supper was another success as we all came together to reach out and serve so many people from the area.

Putting our hearts and hands to work for God's Work. Our Hands Sunday in September. We rolled bandages for Global Health Ministries, colored pictures for nursing home residents, and got the church yard and cemetery cleaned up.

Providing the funds for a new sidewalk and steps that now safely lead us from the parish hall to the cemetery road.

Hosted groups and family gatherings in our parish hall, as well as the Synod church librarian group.

What I've been excited about.... The way in which our congregation so generously gives to those in need. For instance, the $300 donation to World Hunger, the donations to the Southland Area Food Shelf, as well as our missionary support and benevolence giving to the ELCA.

What I lament for 2016....This is a hard one since I am grateful for so many things. One thing I do lament is not being able to find much interest in opportunities to grow spiritually. Bible studies and book groups don't seem to have much of a draw and our Lenten services last year really struggled. I will take some of the blame for this, but I am so curious what kinds of things that groups of you would be interested in. The branches need to stay grafted to the vine. Christ the vine will not let us go, but apart from the vine we can do nothing. What might those opportunities for growing spiritually look like for us as we seek to grow in our faith day by day?

I am grateful for...a wonderful, thoughtful, generous, fun-loving congregation to serve. St. John's is a healthy family-size congregation with deep roots and loving hearts. You embody faithful hospitality, support of our children and care of those who may not always be able to be with us in worship. Our WELCA group continues to show God's love to others through the making of quilts and layettes and the support of many missions locally and globally.

I am so grateful for our Sunday School kids, their families and those who have given of your time and talents to teach. Thanks for another wonderful, Spirit-filled Christmas program this year! Our Confirmation kids make every Wednesday night a joy for me, and I absolutely love it when we have kids in worship on Sunday mornings! Thanks parents and grandparents for bringing your kids to worship. It one of the greatest gifts you can give them!

What I hope for in 2017....a vision of how we hear God's call for us as St. John's Lutheran Church and how we might best live out that calling joyfully, with purpose and with hope. Jesus reminds us that "Those who abide in me and I in them bear much fruit, because apart from me you can do nothing." We may not know just what that will look like for us in the coming year, but we can certainly count on one thing: Christ's abiding presence in our lives and in our service to our neighbors near and far. May God bless us with open hearts and minds as we "Know Christ. Love Christ. Serve Christ."

STORIES

FAMILY MATTERS

By Carmen Howe (introduction by Lisa Dietrich)

As we all know, it has been a long-standing tradition to serve oyster stew and chili following the Christmas program each year, and in 2016 I learned just how much it means to the members of our church when I threatened to cancel it.

For the record, it was not a threat that I felt good about by any means, but in my role as council president, I felt I had no choice. The date of the program and supper was drawing near and I simply did not have time to coordinate the effort, so I sent out an SOS email to the congregation with the threat of cancelling the supper part of the Christmas program, and from here I will let Carmen Howe tell the story as published in the January 2017 edition of The Messenger newsletter.

I wanted to share an amazing story of stewardship that I witnessed over these past two weeks at St. John's. It all began with the oyster stew and chili supper. It appeared that we had no one in charge of the supper. Lisa Dietrich sent out an email to everyone explaining the situation and my daughter Courtney said, "Well, if it means no chili and oyster stew supper then I will do it because I'm not willing to give that up."

Well, as her mother, I was so proud and decided that I would get the ball rolling and answer that email. That is when the volunteers just started rolling in - one email after another with donations of money, time and talent. The supper was planned and all donations in tact in a matter of two days.

The stewardship did not stop there. The night of the concert I noticed that the young adults of the congregation joined the Sunday School in sharing the Christmas story. That was so wonderful to witness.

After the concert, everyone came for fellowship and to enjoy the chili and oyster stew and what happened after that brought tears to my eyes. People were bringing their bowls up to be washed and asking, "What can I do to help?" Some people grabbed dish towels to help while others took down tables and put chairs away. We were cleaned up and home by 7:00 pm that night. It was the most heartwarming night of stewardship all the way around and that folks is what I love about my church family!

I found out later that another family was ready to step up and take charge of the oyster stew and chili supper but Carmen and her daughters beat them to it, which also speaks to what a remarkable church family we have!

In the end, the oyster stew and chili supper raised $682 to be used to repair the back wall of the balcony.

For if they fall, one will lift up the other; but woe to one who is alone and falls and does not have another to help. Ecclesiastes 4:9-10*

COVER THEM WITH LOVE!

By Lisa Dietrich

Ever since I started putting the Annual Report together, WELCA and the Circles have provided impressive lists of their stewardship accomplishments for the year, which always includes fabric and thread given to Lutheran World Relief. Every time I type that into the report, I wonder why send fabric and thread? Wouldn't it be more thoughtful to send clothes? Well, you know how sometimes when you lose something; you find it while looking for something else? I had a similar experience as I was looking at the Lutheran World Relief website and stumbled upon the story behind the donation of dress fabric and thread.

Turns out, Lutheran World Relief calls them "fabric kits" and as taken from their website, describes these kits as follows:

*You've maybe heard the analogy about teaching someone to fish...
well you can help teach a person to sew and provide the tools to earn an income and break out of poverty. Project Promise Fabric Kits are used in vocational training programs to teach young men and women useful, marketable skills. Cover them with love!*

With a little more looking, I found that in 2016, 17,138 fabric kits were delivered to countries around the world, of which, 9,759 were shipped from Minnesota warehouses. That is 56% of the total...go Minnesota! 1,740 went to Burkina FASO (I had to Google this one to find out it is a country in Africa, formerly known as Upper Volta); 2,460 were shipped to DRC (another Google search told me this is the Democratic Republic of Congo, also in Africa) and 1,558 went to Peru.

St John's WELCA and the two circles do not stop at just donating the fabric and thread, they also donate money for shipping and the Lutheran World Relief website notes that it takes $1 to ship one fabric kit.

We will never know how many lives are impacted by these simple fabric kits, but we know that at least 18 lives have been given an opportunity for a brighter future.

Beloved, you do faithfully whatever you do for the friends, even though they are strangers to you.

GODS WORK, OUR HANDS ...THE SEQUAL

By Norma Klaehn (introduction by Lisa Dietrich)

We have had some very productive Sundays over the past few years with our participation in the ELCA's God's Work, Our Hands Sunday, but Norma Klaehn proves that it doesn't have to stop there. Here is her story...

In 2016, we needed to make flannel diapers for the layettes. It takes four diapers per layette, so we ordered a bolt of 27-inch wide flannel from Hancock Fabrics in Rochester, which was the only source we could find, and it was picked up by Carol Lantow. We also asked Dr. Mary Fargen if she needed diapers for her trip to Haiti. She did, so I began looking for funding.

As word spread that we needed funds for diapers for missions, responses came in. Marshall Church made a donation along with Gerald Meier who also gave funds. Gerald and a friend went down to Iowa to a fabric shop and bought numerous ends of bolts of white flannel, which he donated. I also received a phone call from Hancock Fabrics asking if I still want diaper flannel. I told them yes, so Tam Klaehn picked it up for us. A resident where I live, Avene Nolte, asked a cousin in Iowa who has a Hancock store in her town, and she donated a bolt.

I can make the diapers on my serger, so there was no problem there, but I needed help in cutting them, especially when handling a bolt of fabric. So we, 8 residents of Cedar Court Apartments, formed a cutting party and in two mornings we cut 190 diapers - over 60 for St. John's, over 30 for Marshall, and 97 for Dr. Mary. We may be old, but don't count us out. So many from various faiths, areas, and abilities were involved, and when Dr. Mary returned, she gave us a party! GOD'S WORK, OUR HANDS.

And God is able to provide you with every blessing in abundance, so that by always having enough of everything, you may share abundantly in every good work. 2 Corinthians 9:8

INSPIRED BY PIZZA

By Lisa Dietrich

Berne, Minnesota, as described by Wikipedia, is an unincorporated community in Dodge County, located near the junction of State Highway 57 and Dodge County Road 24 (about 20 miles northwest of Rochester.) The community of Berne is deeply rooted in its Swiss heritage as evidenced by its name that is after Bern, Switzerland.

For over 50 years the members of the Zwingli United Church of Christ hosted an annual celebration and tribute to their heritage called Swissfest, but then they decided to try something new and to say this new idea was a success would be an understatement.

In 2012, members of Zwingli started serving pizza, made from scratch and baked in an outdoor wood-fired oven. On any given Wednesday evening from June through August, this event can draw people by the hundreds and the proceeds from selling pizza go to help the church and various charities.

A couple of years ago, Doug and Linda Johnson made the trip to Berne for some pizza and while there, Linda noticed how people were enjoying their pizza and the music in the picnic-like setting and it occurred to her that perhaps St. Johns, with its beautiful setting conveniently located just off Interstate 90, could also offer something like this. But rather than just tell people about it, she offered pizza money for someone else to experience it for themselves. So, Jon and I and Barb Stephenson loaded up our lawn chairs and headed for Berne.

When we arrived, we almost turned around and came back home because of the number of cars that lined the roads and that were parked in a grassy area across the road from the church, but we decided to stay and check it out.

We waited for just over an hour for our pizza, but it did not seem that long because we were entertained by the people watching. From sitting on blankets to the four women who set up a table and chairs, complete with a table cloth and a vase with flowers, wine glasses and a bottle of wine, everyone there was making it their own fun experience. It was amazing.

The council did discuss the feasibility of doing something like this at St. Johns, but in reality, it was just too good of an idea, meaning, if we drew crowds like they were drawing in Berne, we would not have the manpower to keep up. There was also concern in the cost of building and maintaining an outdoor pizza oven.

But Linda is not a quitter. She continued to give it some thought and in 2016 took her inspiration from the Berne wood-fired pizza, switched up the menu and the “Stock the Food Shelves Italian Serenade” was born. A good friend and neighbor to St. John’s, Jeannine Guern, volunteered to make lasagna and with the help of a small group of volunteers from St. Johns, a date was set and plans were put into motion. All that was needed was one of those beautiful summer evenings. The weather did not cooperate as it rained ...steadily, just as the weather forecast predicted, so the event was moved indoors to the parish hall.

The rain did not dampen the spirits of those who were there to serve or those who attended as it wasn’t long before the parish hall filled with a joyful atmosphere thanks in part to the area musical groups, from high school students to retired teachers, who provided the serenade portion of the evening with some great and festive music.

This event not only made for a fun evening, it also raised $566 for the Southland Area Food Shelf and the leftovers fed 88 people at the Salvation Army!

So let us not grow weary in doing what is right, for we will reap at harvest time, if we do not give up. Galatians 6:9

THE REASON FOR THE SEASON

By Lisa Dietrich

This story does not highlight one of St. John’s accomplishments in 2016 but rather, it highlights a lesson I learned in 2016. I am including this story ... because I can and it provides some insight into why I threatened to cancel the oyster stew and chili supper.

My 2016 holiday season started out with a trip to Arizona so that Jon and his siblings could spend Thanksgiving together. Although it would be the start of a holiday season that quickly felt as if it was getting away from me, it was a fun trip and one that will be cherished more with each passing day. As life marches on and we have families of our own who begin to have families of their own, it is not always easy to get together with our siblings for an afternoon, much less the days we were afforded on this trip. There was enough time to reminisce, play games, go site seeing, and simply enjoy the company of one another.

Taking a red-eye flight (thanks to our top-notch travel agent Bubba ☺), we arrived home early on a Monday morning, and the following Saturday, Jon and I left for a work-related trip to Key Biscayne, Florida. Leaving bitter cold temperatures behind, one should not complain about a trip to Key Biscayne in December, especially when staying at a luxury resort that was possible only because my employer, not I, was picking up the tab; but, I returned home to a partially decorated Christmas tree (thanks to two grandsons who did a fine job of decorating the lower third of the tree) and a Christmas village that had only made it out of the boxes prior to leaving for Florida and were strewn on the floor rather than arranged on the shelves. With a to-do list at home and at work that seemed endless; it felt as if Christmas was quickly slipping away.

I love Christmas. I love everything about Christmas. The smell, decorating my home, the spirit of giving and good will that permeates amongst people despite the pressures they are feeling, Christmas movies, Christmas songs, and most of all what gives meaning to Christmas...the birth of Christ. I've convinced myself that collectively, this is what defines Christmas.

With my long to-do lists, there was no time to stop and enjoy the essence of Christmas and as a result I became increasingly frustrated. I had been chasing Christmas since coming back from Arizona and it was becoming evident that I was not going to catch up. I was not going to find time to enjoy all that I thought defined Christmas. That is, until I attended the Christmas Eve service at Zumbro Lutheran Church in Rochester to watch my daughter and her family play the role of Mary, Joseph, two really cute little shepherds, and staring as baby Jesus (pacifier and all), my first born granddaughter.

Upon entering the church, adults were given candles and the children were given bells. The church service began with the song, Oh Come All Ye Faithful and in that moment as the sanctuary filled with the sounds of the pipe organ, the voices of those singing, and bells ringing to no particular beat or rhythm, I realized that during the entire time I was trying to chase Christmas in an effort to catch up, Christmas was simply waiting for me to slow down and rejoice in it. As I felt a peaceful serenity over take me, I knew that checking things off my checklist had no part in it.

So I leave you with this – Do not let Christmas be defined by traditions and to-do lists, but rather let the gift from God define Christmas and be the reason for the season.

“Look, the virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and they shall name him Emmanuel,” which means. “God is with us.” Matthew 1:23
